A program that automates repetitive text and command-line commands (also called macros). It is a convenient tool for IT professionals, who need to create highly automated procedures, and it also serves as an example of "macro speak", which can be found in a number of other applications. This application is specifically designed for the following: Pros Greater program stability Enhanced reporting functionality Cons No multiple documents support No custom background image Ability to export macros is weak What is KEYMACRO? KEYMACRO is a software tool that enables users to automate repetitive tasks on the command-line. The program allows you to create macros that execute a set of steps with the click of a mouse, without the need to type all the required text again and again. The automation of repetitive tasks is a common need in IT departments, where it is common to perform the same or similar functions. One example would be issuing a certain text string to a number of users via email. The program can be installed on your local PC or used online, where it is also available as a web-based application. This utility enables you to create macros that can be saved, so that they can be reused in the future. There are a few caveats, though, such as the fact that you cannot save macros with a complex structure or create a macro that runs multiple statements. Features KEYMACRO provides a number of features that aim to make the program user-friendly. For instance, you can make macros run in parallel, hide the command window, set the parameters and customize the output text. When used online, the macro creation and execution is fully automated, as you just need to enter a few commands and click the Start button. The interface of the program's main window is also simple to navigate, as all the functions are displayed on a single main page. When used offline, you have to perform some configuration to enable the program to operate. The configuration options are stored in an XML file that contains the macros that you have created and can be edited manually. It is possible to also use Auto-Tasks, which are typically set to run automatically at a certain time, thus enabling you to execute certain macros without having to sit down and press the Start button. If you need to get a macro to run periodically, such as during regular system scans, the process is very simple, as you just need to

Remote Scheduler is a simple utility that can help you create a scheduled task on a set of remote computers. It can be used to launch specific applications, launch programs, copy files and delete files. The utility supports working in client mode, where the application is executed on the target machine and it runs from the host computer. In this mode, you can also customize the settings. In server mode, the application is launched on the remote machine and it executes from the host. The program provides a standard interface, but you can customize the layout to match your needs. The application is limited to running from a shared location, as it does not support network connections. Note: The source code is available for free and it is easy to compile. Remote Scheduler has no known incompatibilities or other issues. Remote Scheduler is a relatively simple application that can help users who need to manage several computers or initiate various actions from a remote location. It enables you to execute scheduled tasks on multiple machines even if you cannot access them directly. The program is not too difficult to use, and there is no need to configure any network settings, as all the client computers simply load a script file saved to a shared location. Intuitive application that enables you to set up scheduled tasks The utility allows you to create tasks that are executed at a certain time, or on a specified interval. You only need to define the target application, the working directory and task parameters, although some other advanced settings can be customized as well. For instance, you can set up a machine filter to prevent certain computers from executing the task, run the process as a different user, capture the execution output and hide the console window when the task is launched. Execute tasks on multiple client machines from a remote location Once you have configured one or more tasks, you can export them to a script file and save it to a shared location. The file can then be loaded by client machines that are running Remote Scheduler and executed from the host computer. When run in Client Mode, most of the application's functions are disabled, and you also have the option of protecting the scheduler with a password, thus preventing unauthorized users from shutting it down. Features a minimalistic interface and offers adequate documentation The program's UI is not at all cluttered, and the menus are arranged in an intuitive manner. You can also customize the layout by resizing the various panels. The user manual is not very extensive, but it does a good job of explaining the purpose of all the available functions. In conclusion, Remote Scheduler is a useful application that enables you to create scheduled tasks and execute them on multiple remote machines. It can be configured without too much effort, and it does not rely on prior specialized knowledge. Remote Scheduler Description: Remote Scheduler is a simple utility that can help you create a scheduled task
